

Writing competition

With a sprinkle of inspiration, little ideas can grow into big ideas.

READ
GROW
Inspire

Write a short story about your best idea ever.

My Best idea Ever - Inspiring young people to dance

I can hear the crowd cheering as I proudly walk on stage. My heart is thumping heavily against my chest. De dum de dum de dum.

This is my chance to show everyone what I've got. While I try hard to contain my smile, loud music booms across the hall and echos in my ear.

I'm about to start so I take a quick glance at my family but they seem not to notice me so I draw my eye's back. Except they hold their glance at a little girl who looked just like me when I started ballet. She was inspired by me and I was inspired by her. I start dancing this was the very first dance I learnt and as if it was magic it brought my thoughts back to the day I started ballet.

The older girls were showing me how to do a pirouette. I wondered what it would be like for them - now I know and my goals to inspire kids to start ballet and become more like me. Soon enough the dance was over and all my ^{thoughts} slip away like the breeze gently hitting my face. I start to hear names being called they were announcing the places! 10, 9, 8, 7, 6, 5... I count down in my head 4, 3... I could win this, I listen excitedly as the man talking in the microphone says "in second place is Julia Paddesin. I can't believe it I've won! The crowd goes crazy but ~~no~~ none scream was the loudest the little girls.