

Writing competition

With a sprinkle of inspiration, little ideas can grow into big ideas.

Write a short story about your best idea ever.

The Marvellous Baker

Grass grew, trees thickened, birds chirped as the sun rose. "What time is it?" Aurora mumbled half asleep in her bedding. "Oh no! I'm going to be late for my grocery shopping!" Aurora cried as she got dressed into 'going out clothing'. Aurora began to lock her front door until she realised that her mail box had been slightly opened so she decided to look inside. To her surprise she pulled out a white form that had written on it. "Well, well, well! A cooking competition has begun! Oh you will be in shock!

The grand prize is ten thousand dollars, you can't miss out! Join us at Barking Wood Studio if you're willing to enter!" "I'm for sure attending!" Aurora mumbled to herself while walking to the destination. She had forgotten all about grocery shopping.

As Aurora was welcomed at the studio a timer shortly went off. Pans, pots, flour and sugar were flying everywhere! She saw contestants baking which caused her to suddenly freeze. "Oh what could I possibly bake!" Aurora thought to herself panicking. "Wait.. how did I not think of this! I will make the most delicious cupcakes in the universe! She started cooking as the time was quickly passing. Minute by minute. Second by second, until the time was gone. "Hooray, I'm so hyped to see your scrumptious creations!" The judges cried. They started to taste each dessert and finalise their thoughts. "The winner of ten thousand dollars is... Aurora!" The judges shouted. Cheering and claps started to rise, oh Aurora had the best idea ever!