

Mia and the Magic Library

On a dark rainy Saturday night a girl named Mia felt hungry, her stomach rumbled so she popped off the couch, slipped on her socks and glided to the pantry for a packet of cheetos. She took a cheeto out of the packet and chucked it into her mouth. The next thing she knew she awakened in a dark room.

Mia slowly and carefully walked around the dimmed room. Once she had put the light on she noticed that she was in a library, but it didn't look like it had been used in a very long time...

Mia started to glance around, she started to look at some of the books on the worn out shelves. After about 10 minutes she came across her favorite book, Alice in wonderland! Mia hadn't read it in ages so she carefully lifted the book and opened it.

A bright light came out from inside the story and suddenly Mia started to see vines, moss and flowers start to appear everywhere around the room and in the corner of her eye she saw a rabbit. The little creature was rushing around and as he got closer she started to hear a voice that was saying... "Im late, im late for a very important date," Mia got curious so she followed the bunny.

It led her to a forest but it was magical, it had lots of greenery, flowers, birds and it was so peaceful. Mia started to wander around and she came across a man in a big playing card, he was holding a staff but it didn't look like it was his. "What are you doing standing out here in the cold" said Mia, but she didn't know that he was a guard, but not just a normal one.

The guard took Mia by the hand and dragged her to a castle, not any castle but one where the guards paint the roses red Mia had finally figured out that when she opened the Alice in wonderland book that she somehow teleported into the story! She started to walk towards the castle, but she noticed that because it was so big it would be really hard to find your way through, especially if you have never actually been there before. Mia pushed with all her strength, then the doors creaked open and she quietly started to show herself around. The long hallways were starting to become a maze, she walked around in circles but then realized where to go. She changed direction and found the queen's room.

Peeking around the corner, no one was in there so she crept over to the throne and saw a red button. Not knowing what to do but then she thought its a red button i can't not push it. Mia got the courage and tapped the button, the walls and floor started to disappear, a bright light filled the room and before she knew it she was back on her couch on a normal rainy Saturday.