

Writing competition

Reading is magic and can transport you to amazing and curious places.

The Worst Best Day Ever!

Write a short story about a wonderful and magical place.

As you open a book, with a flick of a page. There is magic in the world, and it might seem strange. But a book can do anything if you use your imagination, you could get teleported into a magical orientation.

"Amelia lets go!" Screams mum from the car. Amelia can't believe this is actually happening. "Bye Amelia," cried Sienna and Ella, Amelia's best friends. They handed Amelia a present for going away. Amelia grabbed the present and walked away without saying a word. She didn't want to move, or leave her friends, or leave her school. But she didn't have a say in the decision, they were moving to be closer to grandma since she is sick. "Amelia come on!" Screamed mum. Just looking at the boxes made Amelia start to cry. Cold tears fell down her face as they drove away in their little red car.

There was a frown on Amelia's face. They arrived at the new house. Amelia was surprised, the house was white, brick and small. Her room had two beds and was tiny. She had to share with her little sister Molly. "Well this can't get any worse." Amelia declared.

Amelia decided to open the present from her friends. To her surprise it was a book. There was a little card on the book that said, "Dear Amelia we hope this brings a little magic into your life. XOXO Ella and Sierra. For the first time Amelia actually smiled. She opened the book and something happened. Amelia opened her eyes to see green and pink trees swaying in the wind, animals of all kinds played and sang. "What is this place?" Amelia questioned. "Happy land!" All the animals replied. "where all your worries and problems slip away." Amelia stayed for a bit and relaxed, she couldn't believe how magical this place was. Talking animals and no worries. All she could do was be happy.

After a while Amelia teleported home, "That place was wonderful and magical", she thought. "Maybe this house isn't that bad", Amelia wondered. She walked out of her room with a big smile on her face. She was going to make this work. All she needed was a little magic.
