The Waterfall of Valintry

After a long day at work, Benjamin Hugh came home. He ate a quick dinner, took a shower and finally, reclined on his armchair, with a good book in his hands, read until he fell asleep, with a book over his face.

When he finally woke up, he found a dragon with scales as black as night looking in through the window. "Aaah!" Benjamin screamed. As a scientist, who, as all scientists ~~are~~ ^{are}, was a man of science and only science, he could not believe his eyes.

"I am the Dragon of the Night and I have come to request your help on behalf of the King and Queen of my kingdom. Hop on my back and I will take you there."

He agreed and hopped on. In a flash ~~of~~ of blinding light, ~~he~~ ^{they} were in the garden of a magnificent kingdom.

When ~~we~~^{they} got there, he met the King and Queen of the Night Kingdom. "We need your help. You need to get through the frozen waterfall and collect the treasure from behind. Then bring it to us."

He agreed and traveled to the waterfall. He tried to break it down ~~for~~ but to no avail. Then, he put salt on it. It melted instantly. He saw what was behind. It was a knight's sword. He brought it to the royals and they awarded him with a new title. A knight to protect their Kingdom!
