.....A cool breeze rushes through my ^{body} as my fingers flick through the pages of.....

.....my book. I could hear the branches of the great oak tree rustling and swifting..

.....with the wind side by side. I slowly sit up from my picnic cloth and gobbled

.....onto a patch of strawberries. A sweet and sour texture rushes down my

.....throat as it fills me with delight. I find peace in reading and being alone.

.....My magical place of feeling wonderful is a *small lake where it is up a

.....short hill where I can enjoy having peace.

.....Peace brings me of being in a good mood. I slowly lay back down as.....

.....I close my eyes, I then took deep clean breaths. My body begins to .....float and levitate as the wind spins me in circles. I peek one eye.....

.....open to see a flashing light of bright colours, all sorts of colours.....

.....I slowly open my eyes, looking around of where I was. My eyes goes..

.....blind from the thick foggy air, the sky was darker than usual, my....

.....toes and fingers would go numb and my bottom lip was jelly. I.....

.....walk through the foggy air quickly, only to realise a breathtaking.....

.....view of a large beautiful lake was in front of me. A field of pretty...

.....lavenders all stare, gazing at me. I sigh in relief, this place feels like home..
